Note on this public copy. This form is dated the same day as the supplemental letter and the cost itemization, and it is the only one of the three that changes the disposition: the July 17 notice denied the request in full, while this notice denies it in part and cites MCL 15.243(1)(a) for the first time. The office does not explain what changed, and it does not identify which records it is now granting in part. Note also the shape of the exemption claim: the material described as separated consists of names, contact information, dates of birth, addresses and criminal identification numbers — none of which is needed to count charges by month. MCL 15.244 requires that exempt material be segregated and the remainder disclosed; it does not permit withholding an entire dataset because some fields within it are exempt.
